GLOBAL PERSPECTIVES
ON THE NEW TESTAMENT
GLOBAL PERSPECTIVES
ON THE NEW TESTAMENT

EDITORS

Mark Roncace
Wingate University

Joseph Weaver
Wingate University

PEARSON

Boston  Columbus  Indianapolis  New York  San Francisco  Upper Saddle River
Amsterdam  Cape Town  Dubai  London  Madrid  Milan  Munich  Paris  Montréal  Toronto
Delhi  Mexico City  São Paulo  Sydney  Hong Kong  Seoul  Singapore  Taipei  Tokyo
BRIEF CONTENTS

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Chapter</th>
<th>Title</th>
<th>Page</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>1</td>
<td>Birth of Jesus</td>
<td>1</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>2</td>
<td>Sermon on the Mount</td>
<td>11</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>3</td>
<td>Parables of Jesus (Part I)</td>
<td>21</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>4</td>
<td>Parables of Jesus (Part II)</td>
<td>30</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>5</td>
<td>Teachings of Jesus (Part I)</td>
<td>39</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>6</td>
<td>Teachings of Jesus (Part II)</td>
<td>48</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>7</td>
<td>Miracles of Jesus</td>
<td>58</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>8</td>
<td>Gospel of John (Part I)</td>
<td>69</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>9</td>
<td>Gospel of John (Part II)</td>
<td>80</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>10</td>
<td>Crucifixion of Jesus</td>
<td>91</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>11</td>
<td>Resurrection of Jesus</td>
<td>101</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>12</td>
<td>Acts (Part I)</td>
<td>113</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>13</td>
<td>Acts (Part II)</td>
<td>123</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>14</td>
<td>Romans</td>
<td>133</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>15</td>
<td>1 Corinthians</td>
<td>145</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>16</td>
<td>Galatians</td>
<td>155</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>17</td>
<td>Ephesians</td>
<td>165</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>18</td>
<td>Philippians</td>
<td>175</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>19</td>
<td>1-2 Timothy and Titus</td>
<td>184</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>20</td>
<td>James</td>
<td>194</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>21</td>
<td>Revelation (Part I)</td>
<td>203</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>22</td>
<td>Revelation (Part II)</td>
<td>213</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Credits</td>
<td></td>
<td>223</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
CONTENTS

Preface  xiii

Chapter 1 BIRTH OF JESUS  1
The Annunciation to Mary in the Qur’an
F. Volker Greifenhagen (Canada)  2
Comparing the Birth Stories of Lord Lao and Jesus
Bede Benjamin Bidlack (United States)  4
Herod’s Slaughter of the Children and Other Atrocities
Néstor O. Míguez (Argentina)  7
Reading Luke’s Christmas Story with Those in Haiti
Kent Annan (Haiti)  8

Chapter 2 SERMON ON THE MOUNT  11
Buddhism’s Noble Eightfold Path and Jesus’ Beatitudes
Elizabeth West (United Kingdom)  12
The Beatitudes and the Accra Confession
Margaret Aymer (United States)  14
The Sermon on the Mount and Wealthy Christians in Indonesia
Batara Sihombing (Indonesia)  16
Reading Matthew 6 with Those in Tanzania
Sakari Häkkinen (Tanzania)  18

Chapter 3 PARABLES OF JESUS (PART I)  21
The Parable of the Good Samaritan and Those in Need
James Wiseman (United States)  22
An Indian Reading of the Good Samaritan
M. Aravind Jeyakumar (India)  23
The Weeds and Wheat in Korean Christianity
Eunjoo Mary Kim (Korea)  25
Marriage Practices in India and the Parable of the Ten Virgins
Surekha Nelavala (India)  27

Chapter 4 PARABLES OF JESUS (PART II)  30
The Laborers in the Vineyard and the Unemployed in South Africa
Gerald West and Sithembiso Zwane (South Africa)  31
Reading the Parable of the Talents with Those in India
David Joy (India)  33
Contents

A Queer Reading of the Parable of the Leaven
Robert E. Shore-Goss (United States) 34

A Confucian Perspective on the Parable of the Sower
Kurtis Hagen (United States) 37

Chapter 5 TEACHINGS OF JESUS (PART I) 39

Luke 4 and the African-American Bushwick Neighborhood
Josiah Young (United States) 40

Honoring Your Parents and Ancestors
Andrea K. Iskandar (China) 41

The Widow’s Offering and Dalit Theology
Johnson Thomaskutty (India) 43

Personal Reflections on the “Hybrid” Identity of the Phoenician Woman
Valerie Bridgeman (United States) 45

Chapter 6 TEACHINGS OF JESUS (PART II) 48

“A Knife Behind a Smile” in the Interaction Between Jesus and Jewish Leaders
Ken Chan (China) 49

The Metaphor of the Fruit Tree and the Concept of Character
Bjørn Stærk (Norway) 51

Ukraine, the United States, and the Rich Young Ruler
Vasyl Khokhla (Ukraine) 53

The Rich Young Ruler in a Church in Argentina
Néstor O. Míguez (Argentina) 54

Chapter 7 MIRACLES OF JESUS 58

The Trouble with “Blind Faith”
Bjørn Stærk (Norway) 59

Reading the “Calming of the Sea” with Those Who Are Suffering
Gerald West and Bongi Zengele (South Africa) 60

A Comparison of Jesus’ Miracles in the Qur’an and the Gospels
F. Volker Greifenhagen (Canada) 63

Four Observations about Jesus’ Interaction with the Centurion
Róbert Jáger (Slovakia) 66

Chapter 8 GOSPEL OF JOHN (PART I) 69

The Good Shepherd as Inspiration for a Prison Minister
Bilal Ansari (United States) 70

Jesus and John the Baptist in the Context of a Group-Oriented Society
Menghun Goh (Malaysia) 72
A Mother’s Perspective on Birthing Imagery
Beth M. Stovell (United States) 74

A Reading of John 3:16
Shirley Phelps-Roper (United States) 77

Chapter 9 GOSPEL OF JOHN (PART II) 80
The Samaritan Woman from a Jewish Perspective
Naomi Graetz (Israel) 81

The Image of the Vine in Serbian Agrarian Culture
G. Kevin Steger (Serbia) 83

An Inclusivist Interpretation of John 14:6 through a Baha’i Lens
Michael Sours (United States) 85

The Maori concept of Mana and Doxa in John
Derek Tovey (New Zealand) 88

Chapter 10 CRUCIFIXION OF JESUS 91
The Crucifixion from a Buddhist Perspective
T. Kenjitsu Nakagaki (United States) 92

Dealing with Differences in the Crucifixion Narratives
Michael Shepherd (United States) 94

A Dalit Reading of the Cross
Joseph Prabhakar Dayam (India) 96

The Suffering of Jesus and Suffering in Africa
Anne Nasimiyu-Wasike (Uganda) 99

Chapter 11 RESURRECTION OF JESUS 101
A Case for the Historicity of the Resurrection
Eric Foster and Mandy Foster (United States) 102

Questioning the Historicity of the Resurrection
Øyvind Strommen (Norway) 104

Jesus’ Post-resurrection Meal and Filipino Hospitality
Marilou S. Ibita (Philippines) 106

A Queer Reading of the Emmaus Story in Luke 24
Robert E. Shore-Goss (United States) 109

Chapter 12 ACTS (PART I) 113
Pentecost from the View of Immigrant Communities
Margaret Aymer (United States) 114

Acts 2 and Revolutionary Christian Movements in the Black Diaspora
Joseph L. Tucker Edmonds (United States) 115
Contents

The Unification Themes of Acts 2 and South African Apartheid
David T. Williams (South Africa) 117

Five Thoughts on Theology and Practice in the Pentecostal Movement
Lee Roy Martin (United States) 120

Chapter 13 ACTS (PART II) 123

The Church in Acts and the United States
Jimmy Martin (United States) 124

Paul’s Shipwreck in the Context of World Literature
Andreas Kunz-Lübcke (Germany) 125

Cornelius and Peter as Models for Overcoming Tribalism
Priscille Djomhoué (Cameroon) 127

A Lesson from Paul on Interreligious Dialogue
Song-Chong Lee (South Korea) 129

Chapter 14 ROMANS 133

Anti-Judaism and Paul’s Theology in Romans
Fritz Voll (Canada) 134

Paul’s Inclusion of the Gentiles and Non-Christian Traditions
Erik Ranstrom (United States) 137

Paul’s Identity and the People of Hong Kong
Xiaxia (Esther) Xue (Hong Kong) 139

New Zealand’s Diversity and Paul’s Vision of Community
George Wieland (New Zealand) 141

Chapter 15 1 CORINTHIANS 145

The “Body of Christ” and the LGBT Community
Mona West (United States) 146

Challenging the “Straight/Gay” Divide
Luis Menéndez (Spain) 148

Sexual and Marital Ethics in 1 Corinthians 7
Alice Yafeh-Deigh (Cameroon) 150

Love and Evolutionary Biology in 1 Corinthians 13
Nicolette Emanuelle (United States) 152

Chapter 16 GALATIANS 155

The Confucian Analects and Galatians
K. K. Yeo (China) 156

The Judaizers and Western Christianity
Clifford Berger (United States, Ethiopia) 158
Mohammed and the False Gospel
Richard K. Min (Saudi Arabia) 160

Male Circumcision and HIV/AIDS in Sub-Saharan Africa
David J. Downs, Lucas D. Fuunay, Mary L. Fuunay, Mary Mbago, Agrey Mwakisole, and Jennifer A. Downs (Tanzania) 162

Chapter 17 EPHESIANS 165
A Call for Koreans to Practice Right Relationships with God and Each Other
Johann D. Kim (Korea) 166

Ephesians 6:12 in an Ethiopian Context
Rich Hansen (Ethiopia) 167

The Supernatural in Ephesians and a Critique of Scientific Rationalism
J. Ayodeji Adewuya (United States) 170

Comparing Ephesians and the Confucian Vision of Peace
Te-Li Lau (United States) 171

Chapter 18 PHILIPPIANS 175
“Jesus Exalted above All Others” and Interreligious Dialogue
Nicholas Alan Worssam (United Kingdom) 176

The Cosmic Being of Hinduism and the Christ of 2:6–8
John Shearer (India) 178

A Baha’i Perspective on the Humility of Christ
Daniel Grolin (Denmark) 180

Jesus’ Humility in Contrast to Today’s Self-Centeredness
Paula Roberts (United States) 182

Chapter 19 1-2 TIMOTHY AND TITUS 184
The Pastorals and Progressive-Liberalism
Luis Menéndez (Spain) 185

Women in the Pastorals and in Evangelical Churches in Argentina
Osvaldo D. Vena (Argentina) 187

Paul’s Relationship with Timothy
Janice P. De-Whyte (Canada) 189

“Faith and Family” for Paul and Immigrants in Puerto Rico
Roberto Martínez (Puerto Rico) 191

Chapter 20 JAMES 194
Pastoral Reflections on the Wisdom of James
Jim West (United States) 195

James as a Manifesto of the Christian Left
Shane Akerman (United States) 197
Australian Ecology and the Book of James
Elizabeth Jakimow (Australia)  199
James and the Tahrir Square Protests
Giovanni Esti (Egypt)  201

Chapter 21  REVELATION (PART I)  203
The Construction of Gender in Revelation
Shanell T. Smith (United States)  204
A Goth Reading of Revelation 19–21
Beth M. Stovell (United States)  206
Revelation as a Warning to Contemporary Churches
Brent Roper (United States)  209
A Literal Reading of Revelation
Chris Griffin (United States)  211

Chapter 22  REVELATION (PART II)  213
Interpreting Revelation in Illiterate Churches in Africa
Onesimus A. Ngundu (Zimbabwe)  214
Ukraine and the Vision of Utopia in Revelation
Vasyl Khokhla (Ukraine)  216
A Critique of the Interpretation of Revelation in Haiti
Ronald Charles (Haiti)  218
The “Lukewarm” Church and Christians in the Philippines
R. G. dela Cruz (Philippines)  220

Credits  223
PREFACE

This book is a lot like the Bible itself in that it is a diverse collection of writings emanating from a variety of geographic, social, cultural, political, economic, and religious contexts. But wait—that first sentence has already indicated a great deal about us (the editors) and about our views of the Bible. Maybe we’ve already revealed more about us—our background, education, life experiences, and so on—than about the Bible itself. To us, the Bible—and specifically the New Testament—is indeed an eclectic anthology, much like this book. However, if someone else were to have written that first sentence, they might have started by introducing the Bible as the infallible Word of God, a book that provides moral and ethical guidelines for everyday life and God’s plan of salvation. Another person might have opened with the claim that the Bible is one of the most toxic texts ever produced and that its continuing influence in our world is one of the great mysteries and tragedies of our day. Incidentally, neither of these two potential perspectives is incompatible with our statement that the Bible is an eclectic anthology.

The point is this: It’s all about perspective. People are different. They approach the Bible with their own various ideas, beliefs, and assumptions, which means there are a myriad of possible ways to write that first sentence. Nobody can say anything without saying something about themselves.

But you may have already known that. Most people living in our postmodern world—or whatever we are supposed to call it now (that’s also a matter of perspective)—realize that there is no neutral, objective perspective from which to assess things, no position that is unencumbered by a specific life setting. Everyone comes from somewhere. Everyone is born in a certain time and place to certain parents and has had certain experiences that shape how we see the world. All those “certainties,” to which many more could be added, make up who you are; they define your specific context and perspective. They also mean that you can be certain that your interpretation of a given biblical text is not the only way that it can be interpreted. While the idea of varied perspectives is hardly new, you may not be aware of the extent and nature of some of those different readings. Hence this book.

FORMAT OF THE BOOK

Herein we have gathered four essays around 22 New Testament texts. Our intention is for you to read the given portion of the New Testament and then to consider what four people from various contexts and backgrounds have written about it. In doing so, you will see the biblical text in a new light; you will learn something about the various interpreters and their particular location; and you will discover something about yourself. Put differently, when we encounter views that are different from our own, we have the wonderfully enriching experience of learning about (1) the New Testament and (2) other interpreters and the places from which they come, which in turn (3) helps us see our own lives and views in a new way. We are thus engaging the New Testament, each other, and ourselves. It’s a dynamic, interactive triangle.

But all three corners of the triangle must be present. The importance of your corner bears emphasizing: You must read the New Testament for yourself. This is absolutely indispensable. You must read carefully and develop your own insights and analyses. This will not only help you “hear” the biblical voice (filtered through your own context, of course), but it will also enable you to appreciate the four different perspectives. We instructed the authors of the essays not to summarize the New Testament passage; there is no sense in using valuable space on something that you can do for yourself. So, you must uphold your end of the deal: You must read the Bible! Yes, you are reading a translation of the Bible and a translation is already an interpretation; but, still, it’s crucial that you experience the text on your own.

To encourage you to do this, we have not included any of our own introductory material to each biblical passage, as it would inevitably reflect our own perspective, which would defeat the book’s purpose of including as many different points of view as possible. Furthermore, you should read the essays with a Bible in hand; many times the authors include only the biblical reference (not the full quotation), which you would do well to look up in order to help you interact thoughtfully with the essay.

To facilitate further your engagement with all three corners of the triangle, we have included four questions at the end of each set of essays (one question for each essay). Use the questions to prompt your critical interaction with the various essays. If the question could occasionally be answered “yes” or “no,” don’t simply leave it at that. Assume that “Why or why not?” or “Explain your answer” follows—we just thought it unnecessary to write it out for you. Yes, our questions inevitably reveal our own interests and ideas, so please feel free to add your own questions and to question our questions. In fact, if you don’t, you probably aren’t thinking hard enough.

There are a mere 88 essays in this book; this, needless to say, is a pittance of the possible number. A book titled Global Perspectives on the New Testament should not be a book at all, but rather a multivolume encyclopedia. But if that were the case, you would have had a much harder time buying it and carrying it around. Think for a moment about how this book barely scratches the proverbial surface of global perspectives on the New Testament. If there are approximately 7 billion people in the world and if only 1 in every 1,000 has something to say about the Bible, then our 86 authors represent only about 0.000012 percent of perspectives on the Bible. We make this point—odd as it may seem—because we hope this collection of essays encourages you to seek out many more interpretations of the New Testament, whether they be from scholarly books and commentaries or friends and family over lunch. These essays are intended to start conversations, not end them. It’s a big world, and this book is terribly small. We are hoping you will create the rest of the encyclopedia.

We have done our best to assemble a wide range of views. Nevertheless, the book should probably be titled Global Perspectives on the New Testament. With the first asterisk we call attention to the fact that as English speakers we could only accept essays written in English. We also solicited submissions via e-mail. As such, by requiring contributors to write in our native language and to have Internet access, we have by necessity precluded a majority of the world’s population. Furthermore, we live and work in the United States. Most of our personal and professional connections are here; therefore, there are far more contributors from the United States than any other single country. Because of this, we feel as though we should iterate that we mean “global” in more than simply the geographic sense. There is religious, ethnic, ideological, political, and socioeconomic diversity in the essays, and those elements, of course, are not bound by particular geographic location. We also assembled contributors from various walks of life; this book is much more “global” than a typical collection of professional academic papers.

The second asterisk shows that, while limiting our fingerprints as much as possible, the essays were proofread and minimally edited. We made the decision to standardize spelling and punctuation, and even to capitalize the word “Bible.” Beyond that, we did little else. We did not standardize, for example, the style of referring to eras (B.C.E., C.E., B.C., A.D.); we did not change inclusive or non-inclusive language or capitalization for pronouns referring to deity. The third asterisk denotes that the term “New” in “New Testament” reflects a Christian perspective in so far as it implies that there is something “Old” in need of fulfillment. Furthermore, although we did not begin with a prescribed list of 22 New Testament texts for which to solicit essays, we did, of course, ultimately determine which texts the book would address.

Let’s mention one more asterisk-worthy matter. You will notice that each set of essays opens with a page featuring a map locating each of the four authors in that set. But where on the map should we put each author’s dot? Where the author was born? Where they have spent most of their life? Where they went to school? Where they were when they wrote the essay? Where they reside now? The place about which they write? It’s not that easy. We live in a transient world. We have decided to put the dot in the place, or places, about which they are writing. Or if geographic location or context is not central to their essay, then the dot is located in the place of their primary current residence. Hence all the dots should have an asterisk to that effect too.

In short, this is only one of many possible ways to assemble a book called Global Perspectives on the New Testament. Despite its limitations and the inherent difficulty of producing a book of this nature, we are confident that you will find these perspectives to be enlightening and engaging. There are many additional introductory and hermeneutical issues that we could explore at the outset, but in the interest of space, let us limit ourselves to two final thoughts. First, the New Testament is the sacred literature of the Christian tradition, but the influence and impact of the New Testament—and the Bible as a whole—have extended beyond Christianity. People who are not Christian read or are familiar with the New Testament. In our effort to offer as many global perspectives as possible, we have included views by those who do not treat the Bible as Scripture. We fully understand that some people with a faith commitment to the text may feel that those outside the tradition do not have anything to offer. We respectfully disagree, and both of us—for the record—are in the Christian tradition.

Our world is too big and complex to ignore thoughtful and intelligent readers simply because they approach the text without a set of traditional religious lenses—or because they come from a tradition other than Christianity. We sincerely appreciate all of the authors of these essays for allowing their work to be published in a book that includes approaches with which they may strongly disagree.

Second, if the essays are eclectic, then so too are the biblical texts that they interpret. Much of this has to do with the nature of the New Testament—it’s not a tidy collection, and some parts have garnered more attention than others. As a result, sometimes the essays in a chapter are in direct dialogue over the same specific text or topic, while other times they address different portions of the passage. Hopefully, every set of essays will draw you into the discussion.

The Bible has a sort of “unevenness” to it, and so do the various sets of essays that follow, which in turn reflects the complex nature of the world in which we live. And thus, we end this short Introduction where it began: If the perspectives herein feel somewhat scattered—all over the place—then we say, “Yes, exactly, and so is both our global world and the New Testament.” Hence a book with our title will inevitably be a bit messy. And yes, this view again reflects our particular perspective as white, Western-educated, middle-class, heterosexual men in the Christian tradition. From where we stand, the following essays offer fresh, compelling readings of the New Testament from a variety of perspectives. Tell us what you think from where you stand.
STUDENT AND TEACHER RESOURCES

This text is available in a variety of formats—digital and print. To learn more about our programs, pricing options, and customization, visit www.pearsonhighered.com.

MySearchLab with eText

A passcode-protected website that provides engaging experiences that personalize learning, MySearchLab contains an eText that is just like the printed text. Students can highlight and add notes to the eText online or download it to an iPad. MySearchLab also provides a wide range of writing, grammar, and research tools plus access to a variety of academic journals, census data, Associated Press news feeds, and discipline-specific readings to help hone writing and research skills.

Instructor’s Resource Manual and Test Bank (0-205-92700-9)

This valuable resource provides chapter outlines, lecture topics, and suggested media resources. In addition, test questions in short essay formats are available for each chapter.

MyTest (0-205-95461-8)

This computerized software allows instructors to create their own personalized exams, to edit any or all of the existing test questions, and to add new questions. Other special features of this program include the random generation of test questions, the creation of alternative versions of the same test, scrambling question sequences, and test previews before printing.

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

As the editors, not the authors, of this book, the list of people we gratefully acknowledge can be found in the Table of Contents. Indeed, the 86 contributors deserve more thanks than we can offer. Their timely and insightful work made this project a reality. We offer our sincerest gratitude to each and every one of them.

We also express appreciation to our wonderful colleagues at Wingate University for designing and implementing a new core curriculum, which was the impetus for this textbook. Without their vision and support, this book never would have happened. We are so grateful to the reviewers who took the time to assess this text prior to its publication: Wayne Brouwer, Hope College; Steven Godby, Broward College-South Campus; Warren Johnson, East Texas Baptist University; and Jeff Tillman, Wayland Baptist University. We also thank Maggie Barbieri for expert editorial guidance and Nancy Roberts for her willingness to take on such an unwieldy project.

Mark Roncace

Joseph Weaver